TAKE NOTICE,

THAT I am to be sold on such terms, that the purchaser need not advance any cash, unless he pleases, till it is earned by my services, provided no accident happens me; or, if you please, I am to be farmed out for two years, and not less. I am a bright bay, full 15½ hands high, of noble descent, my name is TRIMMER—I was got by Hall's imported horse Eclipse, my dam, purchased by Doctor Hall, was got by the imported horse Slim; my grand dam was got by Old Figure; my great grand dam by Taskers Othello out of Selima, &c. &c. as will more fully appear by William Lyle's attested certificate who raised me. My character as a racer is well established; I won the colt's purse at Bladensburg of twenty guineas; I won a fifty guinea purse at Baltimore, a fifty guinea purse at Annapolis and a fifty guinea purse at Hagerstown. I never lost a race but the last I run at Alexandria, which was owning to my being badly shod, as I lost all my plates before I got in. I am in fine plight, sound in every respect; my offspring are in great repute, some of which are now in training for the turf—procure me good stands and entertainment and I am able to earn one thousand dollars per annum.

Foreign Intelligence.

LONDON, November 2.

According to the last letters from the Continent, the king of Prussia still remains undecided; while the directorial agents are busily employed in corrupting the minds of his subjects, and seducing them from their allegiance. It is a fact, that fifty Jacobin emissaries were sent from Paris for the special purpose of debauching the Prussian armies; and that eleven of them actually proceeded to the capital of the kingdom. A near relation of the king was informed of their arrival and of their errand; but, instead of taking any measures for apprehending them, he coolly observed, La police les surveillera —"The police will keep an eye on them." The first staff officer in the Prussian army, stationed on the frontiers of Germany, to guard the line of demarkation, is a decided Jacobin. It was lately observed, by a Prussian, in the presence of several Prussian officers, that the king did not dare to enter into a new coalition—Such a step would occasion his deposition!!! When such facts as these are tolerated, and such languages as this is suffered to pass with impunity, no conduct of the monarch, however absurd, can excite astonishment.

But is not this prince aware of the dangers to which he is exposed by his unnatural neutrality? Does he not know that the French have offered the emperor the possession of Bavaria, on the death of the elector; and that they may be tempted to make him still more alluring offers, in order to procure his consent to their projects of aggrandizement on the Rhine? Nay, we have good reason to believe that such offers, including the cession of Mantua and the adjacent country, have very lately been made. Were the emperor influenced by the sentiments which actuate his conduct, those offers would be accepted; it is therefore the interest, as much as it is the duty, of the Prussian monarch, to strengthen by his accession that leaugue which has for its object the resistance of a power, that has sworn hatred to all monarchy, and which has devoted all monarchs to destruction.

One of the most wise and salutary measures which the emperor of Germany has adopted, is a dismission of four thousand of his officers, for to their perfidy and treachery may chiefly be imputed the disasters which befel the Imperial forces in the last campaign in Italy. He was right to crush all domestic traitors before he resumed a contest which can only end in the annihilation of the Frinch Republic, or the destruction of the German Empire. The die once cast, no alternative will remain. The country of the Grisons will probably be the first scene of action. The emperor, seconded as he is by the inhabitants, ought immediately to enter that country, the possession of which is of the utmost importance to the future operations of the war. On the one hand it will facilitate the recovery of Switzerland, and open to the Imperial armies an entrance into France, in a part that is wholly unprotected by fortified towns. On the other, it will enable the French to complete and secure the conquest of Switzerland, and even give them an easy passage into the Tyrol. Under these circumstances, if the emperor waits until the enemy shall have stricken the first blow, his folly may be deplored but cannot be excused.

"The temporary victory (says Mallet du Pan) gained by the French directory over the courts of Vienna and Petersburgh in the counsels of the king of Prussia, has been attributed to the talents and credit of Sieyes, but this opinion is without foundation. Sieyes has not concealed from the directory the horror and contempt which is expressed for him at Berlin, by people of every rank and description. Though the Prussian government has observed towards him that appearance of respect which is due to a public character, yet it has taken good care not to exceed the limits of the customary etiquette. Neither the court nor the city has disguised its true sentiments in regard to this crafty priest. Every one keeps him at a distance. In his quality, as minister, philosopher, author, and doer of revolutions, he expected nothing short of the most respectful homage, but he has not been honored with a visit from any person of distinction.

"There never existed a more artful, and more corrupt man than this Provence-priest, whose haughty pedantry respects not the pride of others, disdains decency, and induces him to fancy that all his equals ought to prostrate themselves before the immensity of his knowledge. What species of success could probably be obtained at a polished court by an obscure metaphysician, as mean in point of vigor as he is haughty in conversation, unacquainted both with the forms and spirit of negotiations, devoid of all qualities which gain affection, merely qualified to frighten probity, to confound reason, and to inspire the most deserved mistrust: It is this last sentiment which has regulated the conduct of Prussia towards this emissary of anarchy; he is watched by the cabinet of Berlin, hated and disbelieved, his residence in that city has been more beneficial to Europe than to the French republic; it has completely alienated the affection of count Haugwitz, the actual Prussian minister for forsign affairs, who is deemed the most persevering promoter of the system of neutrality preserved by the Prussian court."

Holland is in danger of inundation from the dikes, as they have not been repaired since the beginning of the revolution. According to the last accounts from France, the dikes of Dol, in Britanny, were broken down by the sea, an immense extent of country was inundated, a great number of cattle and houses swept away, and about 10,000 families reduced to the utmost misery, without any habitation and resource. This misfortune arose from the dikes having been neglected for these eight years past all over France, to which cause are likewise to be imputed the same disasters that have befallen Morbihan, and La Vendee, and the bouk of the Lower Loire. The public roads which formerly were an object of admiration to all foreigners, are now nearly impassable. We speak here, only of physical disasters, for to enumerate all the moral disorders, murders, assassinations, suicides, &c. would be an endless labor.

When the Great General of the Nation was living in Italy at the rate of 20,000l. a week, the whole world seemed too little to contain him; the scene is however changed in Egypt, as he wrote some time ago to his brother, that a single room in Paris would content him. Since that period, he would, no doubt, be glad, like his Comptroller-General, to get there even "as naked as the back of his hand."

Lucian Buonaparte has drawn on himself a considerable degree of indignation from the Agent of the Directory, by his observations on the conduct of the French Government towards the Cisalpine Republic. The Clef du Cabinet of the 13th inst. observes, that "a letter from Lucian Buonaparte, has awakened the hopes of the enemies af the country, because it appears to have sown in France the seed of new dissentions." Citizen Lucian is perhaps indebted only to the fame and popularity of his Brother for his existence in France, or even for his privilege of wearing a head. He would otherwise no doubt be qualified to give a faithful report of what his name-sake has attempted, the Dialogues of the Dead

We are informed, that the Frenchmen, who were taken out the Hamburgh brig Minerva, and confined in Fort Pinckney, are now released from their close confinement, and suffered to walk about the Fort, and that their baggage has been restored to them.

A letter received yesterday, by the schooner Phebe, from the Havanna, mentions, that a large Hamburg ship, from Hamburg, bound to the Havanna, with a very valuable cargo of linens and some Teneriffe wine had been captured off that port by a French privateer, which conducted her into the Havanna, where she had been condemned.

BALTIMORE, March 13.

Extract of a letter from one of the officers on board the Montezuma, dated Martinique, February 14, 1799, to his friend in this city.

"Friendship demands the tribute of a tear—the tear of sensibility on the death of a young gentleman—one who truly deserved the title—Mr. John Barry, midshipman, who died of a malignant fever on the first of February. Let his friends know, that although he died from them, he died not unlamented, nor will he be shortly forgotten by those who had the pleasure of his acquaintance—one more has fallen a sacrifice to the disorder, and others are infected.

"Saw this day the frigate United States which 2 days since came up with a French privateer of 12 guns and 80 men, and sunk her at a single shot, and now has the prisoners on board, who were picked up."

A public dinner, in honor of the brave commander of the CONSTELLATION, his officers and crew, for the naval victory lately so gloriously won over the enemies of their country, was on Wednesday last given at Mr Bryden's. A number of occasional toasts were drak, a correct list of which we have not been able to obtain.

A letter from on board the Baltimore sloop of war, dated the 3d instant, mentions, that the ship had been restored to order, and was weighing anchor to proceed on a cruise, of perhaps 3 or 4 months, under the comand of the 1st lieutenant, captain Sperk.

Monf Bunell, we understand by a letter from himself has taken his passage, in company with Dr. Stevens, special agent of the United States, and Mr. Meyer, former consul at that place, in order to return to the Cape. We further learn, that as soon as gen. Touffaint prohibits the privateers of the island from committing further depredations on our commerce, the vessels of the United States, will be again permitted to carry on trade with St. Domingo.

Extract of a letter from an officer on board the United States frigate, under the command of commodore Barry, to a merchant in this town, dated

At sea, on our passage from Barbadoes, to Martinique, with a convoy, Feb. 13, 1799.

"I wrote you some time past from Demarara, since which nothing material has occurred except the capture of a French privateer from Guadaloupe on a cruize; the particulars are as follow:

"On Sunday the 3d inst. to windward of Martinique, at 8 A. M. gave chase to a schooner, and at 3 P. M. came within two gun shot of her, when, to the astonishment of all hands, she attempted by short stretches to get to windward of us directly under our battery, but in this she failed, for we soon brought her too, our third shot having gone effectually through her, and in a few minutes she filled with water, upon which they hauled down their sails, and set up the most lamentable howl I ever heard; and although its said they have abolished all religion, they have not forget the old way of imploring the protection of the omnipotent, with gestures, professions and protestations.

"Our boats were immediately sent to their relief—I was in the first, but when I came near, and found the crew all stript and ready for a swim, I thought it not safe to go on board, but told them the only chance for their safety, was to run along side the ship, which they did, and in a few minutes after the schooner went down. The whole of this piratical crew were saved, amounting to 60 men.

"This famous schooner proves to be the Le Amour de la Patriæ, and has ran for four years with great success, in capturing numbers of our vessels—she was commanded by the infamous Williams, who was some years ago in your town. During his last cruise he captured the schooner Margaretta, belonging to Norfolk.

"Our ship outsails every vessel we meet. In six hours we run the Constitution hull under."

PHILADELPHIA,

MONDAY EVENING, MARCH 18.

On board the Montezuma, at Sea, lat. 22, 30, long. 63, February 20, 1799.

DEAR SIR,

I HAVE so frequently trespassed upon you, with my long details, I am loath to trouble you any further at present, but as I deemed it necessary to proceed a little way with the convoy under the Merrimack, from St. Christopher's, where I arrived in 24 hours from Prince Rupert's Bay, and as Captain Truxton expressed his desire that I should give the schooner Caroline a good run off, from the Islands, I have taken her in tow, she being charged with his dispatches, which are of great moment, and I make no doubt will give you great joy.

I have likewise turned over to the Insurgente, 14 of my men, which I think will promote the naval service, should he succeed in manning so fine a ship.

I parted with Commodore Barry off the Road of Basseterre, Guadaloupe, where he sent his boat with a flag to endeavour to negociate an exchange of prisoners he took up from the privateer he had sunk off Martinico, which he will inform you of, but the fort fired on them and would not let them land. I only saw the circumstance, as I had no opportunity of speaking to him afterwards, not deeming it prudent to leave my fleet.

I seems to be Captain Truxton's particular desire, that I should return to him, after I have dismissed my present charge, and shall comply with his with, if he thinks my services can be better applied, in any objects he may have in view, than those I have planned —I have no objection, as I entered into the service with a pure zeal of doing the best in my power to serve my country.

I cannot conclude without expressing my astonishment at the flourishing situation of the trade of America. When I see our numerous fleets constantly passing these islands, it looks as if our vessels sprung out of the forrests, ready equipped, and to use a simile, like Cadmus's soldiers, the men seem to spring up out of the ocean instead of the earth.

There are now upwards of 40 sail under this convoy, which is the sixth since I have been on this station; a good proof, that America is quite adequate to the support of a navy, equal to most of the powers in Europe.

Sir,

Your most obedient

Humble servant,

A. MURRAY.

BENJ. STODDERT, Esq.

Secretary of the Navy of the U. S.

William B. Giles, who was some time since charged by Mr. J. Nelson, of having expressed sentiments in favor of the disunion of the federal government, has published an answer, in which he positively denies the charge. The farmer, however, even in this has rendered himself ambiguous, expecting no doubt, dexterously to extricate himself from the accusation, and at the same time retain the affection of his colleagues, who are bold enough to avow these views; for, he say, "although a disunion of states would be a dreadful calamity—it would be less dreadful than a systematic despotism."

COMMUNICATION.

ALTHOUGH the friends of government cannot but exult at the spirit manifested by the volunteer associations of our country, for suppressing a daring and outrageous combination against the laws, there is one circumstance involved which is equally calculated to excite opposite feelings; and that is, the very heavy private sacrifices which will necessarily be made by the contemplated expedition. Men of families, supported merely by their industry, will have to relinquish for no inconsiderable period, their accustomed professions—and not only this, but to incur an additional expence in the service of their country. This consideration will, doubtless, awaken in those members of the community whose persons are exempted from the toils, dangers and losses of the enterprise, a spirit of generosity by which the absent husband, father, brother or friend will be encouraged in his patriotism, by the reflection that the beloved connexions which he has left behind him, do not really suffer by his absence. Under this consolation, the rugid severities of an inclement campaign will be ameliorated, and the rude winds, which will otherwise upbraid the soldier with cruelty to his family, will then administer to his joy. For this purpose, I would suggest to my remaining fellow citizens, the propriety of volunteering a general contribution, to sustain and relieve those families, who, in consequence of the absence of friends, will be deprived of their support.

A CITIZEN.

New-York, March 16.

Yesterday morning about 5 o'clock, a fire broke out in a work shop adjoining the frigate building by government at Corlear's Hook. The shop, with some tools, and other materials, was wholly consumed. It is not known by what means the fire was communicated to the building; but we understand suspicions are entertained that it is the work of an incendiary. Com. Ad.

Yesterday, about noon, the President of the United States, arrived in this city. He crossed the North river in the custom house barge, and landed at White hall. We understand the Washington troop of horse, were paraded at Powles hook ferry to receive him, in expectation of his crossing there.

Earl St. Vincent was still at Gibralter, had hoisted his flag on board one of the French ships taken of the Nile.—Sir Roger Curtis had gone home with a convoy, and it is said on account of the displeasure of Earl St. Vincent, for having been driven by the strong westwardly winds beyond Gibralter, with the fleet under his command in consequence of which the blokade of Cadiz had been for a while suspended when 2 Spanish ships of the line and 1 frigate made their escape. The English fleet had again commenced the blockade of Cadiz.
